Twenty-Second Sunday in Ordinary Time

September 3, 2023

Today's Gospel continues the story that began in last week's gospel. Simon Peter was called the "rock" upon which Jesus would build his Church, and yet Peter continues to show the limitations of his understanding of Jesus' identity. Now that the disciples have acknowledged that Jesus is the Messiah, Jesus confides in them the outcome of his ministry: he must suffer and die in Jerusalem to be raised on the third day. Peter rejects this prediction, and Jesus rebukes him severely, calling him "Satan." In opposing this aspect of Jesus' mission, Peter shows that he is no longer speaking based on the revelation from God but as a human being. Jesus then teaches all of the disciples about the difficult path of discipleship: to be Christ's disciple is to follow in his way of the cross.

Peter could not yet understand what it meant to call Jesus the Messiah. It is unlikely that the other disciples understood any better. Messianic expectations were a common aspect of first-century Judaism. Under Roman occupation, many in Israel hoped and prayed that God would send a Messiah to free the Jews from Roman oppression. The common view was that the Messiah would be a political figure, a king that would free Israel from Roman rule. This is perhaps what Peter envisioned when he was led to recognize Jesus as the Messiah. In this passage, however, Jesus is beginning to teach his disciples that he would be the Messiah in a different way.

Jesus would be more like the suffering servant described by the prophet Isaiah than the political liberator. Those who would be Jesus' disciples would be called to a similar life of service. Perhaps this is what Peter feared most in Jesus' prediction of his Passion. He whom Jesus had called "rock" would also be called upon to offer himself in sacrifice and service to others. Christian leaders today are still called to sacrifice and serve others as Jesus did.

Taken from Loyola Press

El Evangelio de hoy continúa la historia que comenzó en el evangelio de la semana pasada. Simón Pedro fue llamado la "roca" sobre la cual Jesús construiría su Iglesia y, sin embargo, Pedro continúa mostrando las limitaciones de su comprensión de la identidad de Jesús. Ahora que los discípulos han reconocido que Jesús es el Mesías, Jesús les confía el resultado de su ministerio: debe sufrir y morir en Jerusalén para resucitar al tercer día. Pedro rechaza esta predicción y Jesús lo reprende severamente, llamándolo "Satanás". Al oponerse a este aspecto de la misión de Jesús, Pedro muestra que ya no habla basándose en la revelación de Dios sino como un ser humano. Luego, Jesús enseña a todos los discípulos sobre el difícil camino del discipulado: ser discípulo de Cristo es seguir su camino de la cruz.

Pedro aún no podía entender lo que significaba llamar a Jesús el Mesías. Es poco probable que los otros discípulos entendieran mejor. Las expectativas mesiánicas eran un aspecto común del judaísmo del primer siglo. Bajo la ocupación romana, muchos en Israel esperaban y oraban para que Dios enviara un Mesías para liberar a los judíos de la opresión romana. La opinión común era que el Mesías sería una figura política, un rey que liberaría a Israel del dominio romano. Esto es quizás lo que Pedro imaginó cuando fue inducido a reconocer a Jesús como el Mesías. En este pasaje, sin embargo, Jesús comienza a enseñar a sus discípulos que él sería el Mesías de una manera diferente.

Jesús se parecería más al siervo sufriente descrito por el profeta Isaías que al libertador político. Aquellos que fueran discípulos de Jesús serían llamados a una vida de servicio similar. Quizás esto sea lo que más temía Pedro en la predicción de Jesús sobre su Pasión. Aquel a quien Jesús había llamado "roca" también sería llamado a ofrecerse en sacrificio y servicio a los demás. Los líderes cristianos de hoy todavía están llamados a sacrificarse y servir a los demás como lo hizo Jesús.
